

UNEMPLOYED RIOTS IN CLEVELAND

OPPOSITION TO HUGHES GROWING

NEW CHIEF JUSTICE HOLDS PREJUDICED OPINIONS IS CLAIM

Friends Hoping For Early Vote On Confirmation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The opposition to confirmation of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice of the United States, growing hour by hour, was developing today in the senate to a point where administration leaders were hoping to force an early vote on the appointment to avoid a prolonged battle.

The naming of Hughes to the highest judicial office in the nation was opposed on the ground that he has prejudiced opinions on all the great economic questions affecting trusts, railroad valuations, freight rates, street car fares, radio control, and regulation of public utilities. Holding such views as he has expressed in recent law suits, the opposition argued, Hughes was disqualified.

The opposition to Hughes has grown with amazing speed. When he was nominated for the high court a week ago, it was believed he would be unanimously confirmed. Now, administration leaders concede, there will be from fifteen to twenty senators voting against confirmation. If the contest should last another week, they added, his confirmation would be doubtful.

It has been nearly a hundred years since a nominee for chief justice was subjected to a fight for confirmation. The precedent occurred in 1856 when Roger B. Taney, of Maryland who afterward wrote the Dred Scott decision, was opposed. Taney secured confirmation finally.

Hughes though was not without friends in the senate. Most administration leaders remained silent, while insurgents and Democrats assailed the nominee on economic grounds, hopeful that their alliance would shorten debate. A few Republicans and Democrats too—Senators Gillett (R) of Mass., Copeland (D) and Wagner (D) of N. Y., leading—voiced approval of Hughes' appointment under the leadership of Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, and George W. Norris (R) of Nebraska. Borah and Norris admitted Hughes' great ability as a lawyer but contended his economic views would bar him from the supreme court. They argued the supreme court has more power than congress; the chief justice more influence on public welfare than the president of the United States.

Borah particularly condemned Hughes' views toward federal regulation of radio, oil, and railroad companies, on the railroad valuation question, the state control of public utilities and even federal control of utilities.

MOST FORMIDABLE CAMPAIGN OF WETS STARTS IN HOUSE

Committee Hears Arguments
Against Prohibition

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The most formidable campaign of the nation's wets against prohibition since it was written into the constitution was opened today before the house judiciary committee which met to hear proposals for repeal or rewriting the eighteenth amendment.

Having purposely selected Lincoln's birthday for the beginning of the hearings, Rep. George S. Graham (R) of Pennsylvania, 79-year-old chairman of the committee, called upon anti-prohibitionists to prove there is a better road to temperance than prohibition.

Admitting there is little likelihood of a dry judiciary committee favoring their measures, the wets nevertheless declared the hearings marked the beginning of their "renaissance" from the present system.

With six members of the house who have introduced bills affecting the eighteenth amendment given first place on the committee's calendar, anti-prohibition organizations came forward with a plan of procedure to give prohibition perhaps its most thorough airing.

Representatives of 'big business' will be presented to refute claims that prohibition is an economic benefit; prominent women will be called upon to say the eighteenth amendment has not helped the home; "reformed dregs" will be introduced to proclaim prohibition a failure, and statisticians and others will tell the committee prohibition is responsible for the nation's crime conditions.

GIVES LOVE AS SLAYING MOTIVE

Forest E. Weaver, 28, of Muskegon, Mich., who posed at times as a cowboy, sheriff and federal officer, has admitted, according to police, to the slaying of Mrs. Gladys Echardt, 29, whose hacked body was found buried in a shallow grave near where the two had gone on a skiing expedition. "I killed her because I loved her," Weaver is said to have told police. Photo shows Mrs. Echardt, who was separated from her husband, in white dress, right, with a friend.

HUNDRED CANDLES

LANCASTER, O., Feb. 12.—And the heat from the candles did not melt the icing on the cake, and nearly 300 persons had a piece of it. The above mentioned cake was baked for George Crow, who celebrated his one-hundredth birthday anniversary, here last night. A candle for each year was lighted and placed on the top of the mammoth work of pastry, but the icing remained intact. Tallow? No one seemed to mind it.

ABOLITION OF SUBS REJECTED BY NAVAL ARMS CONFERENCE

Humanizing Of Use Of Undersea Craft Under-

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Having rejected the Anglo-American proposals for complete abolition of submarines, the London naval arms conference today began its efforts to reach an agreement on the next best thing—"humanizing" of the use of submarines in naval warfare.

Although the French and Japanese delegates successfully resisted the British and American efforts to abolish the use of undersea craft in warfare, all the delegations, including the Italians who held to a middle ground in the controversy, went on record as favoring restriction of the use of submarines against merchant vessels in wartime.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—With a demand from Senator Borah (R) of Idaho that the British scrap their Nelson and Rodney, the two most powerful fighting ships afloat, instead of the United States being required to build a similar super ship, it became increasingly apparent today congress would never authorize the necessary expenditure of between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000.

Under a proposal made by Secretary of State Stimson, the United States would attain battleship parity by constructing a Nelson or a Rodney, scrap a few old ships, and avoid the necessity of British sacrificing her super ships.

FIRST DEMOCRAT IS NAMED TO CONGRESS FROM G. O. P. AREA

Wet To Represent Coolidge's
Home District

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 12.—The historic second district, home of Calvin Coolidge and noted as a Republican stronghold, today had smashed precedent by electing William J. Granfield, Democrat and wet, to congress.

Granfield succeeds to the seat made vacant by the death of Representative Kaynor in an airplane accident. He is the first Democrat elected to congress from the second district since its formation forty years ago.

Granfield carried every ward in Northampton. He scored in districts which had never before gone Democratic. Unemployment and general business depression was believed to have been the major factors in the Democratic victory.

Prohibition was also thought to have played an important part in the upset. Granfield is an emphatic wet while his Republican opponent, Frederick D. Griggs said he was personally a dry but would vote for repeal of the Volstead act if it came up in congress.

HYLAN FLAYS RACKETEERING

Can Be Stamped Out Says Former Mayor Of New York; Makes Judges Target

PALMBEACH, Fla., Feb. 12.—Racketeering, which has reared its menacing head in leading American cities, can be stamped out, according to John F. Hyland, former mayor of New York City, "if governing officials in all branches perform their full duty and administer the law without fear or favor."

Judge Hyland made this assertion in an exclusive interview today. "Racketeering is comparatively new in American life. It has its roots in politics and it has been given impetus by prohibition which has bred a disregard for law in certain quarters."

LINCOLN'S AUTOGRAPHS

Rail Splitter Composed Verses For Little Girls
Of Long Ago.

(Copyright 1930, by I. N. S.)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 12.—"Oh, Mr. Lincoln, won't you please write something in our autograph books?" And at this request of two little backwoods misses still in their teens, Abraham Lincoln paused in his preparations for coming debates with Stephen A. Douglas, much feared "little giant," to try his hand at poetry.

The result, three short verses penned back in 1858 for the two girls, Rosa and Linnie Haggard, are presented to the world today for the first time by International News Service through courtesy of Edward G. Miner, Rochester, N. Y., owner of the original of the verses.

The verses will appear soon in a new volume of Lincoln to be published late in March, compiled by Paul M. Angle, secretary of the Abraham Lincoln Association, Springfield.

On the afternoon of September 28 Lincoln spoke at a large barbecue held at Winchester, county seat of Scott County. During his stay in Winchester, Lincoln stopped at the town hotel, The Haggard House, in the proprietor's family were two daughters. At their request Lincoln wrote the following verses in their autograph books:

TO ROSA
You are young and I am older;
You are hopeful, I am not—
Enjoy life ere it grow colder—
Pluck the roses ere they rot.

Teach your beau to heed the lay—
That sunshine soon is lost in shade—
That now's as good as any day—
To take thee Rosa, ere she fades.

—A. Lincoln.

TO LINNIE
A sweet plaintive song did I hear,
And I fancied that she was the singer—
May emotions as pure as that song set astir
Be the worst that the future shall bring her.

—A. Lincoln.

GAZETTE WINS HONORS AMONG THIRTY OHIO DAILY NEWSPAPERS

The Xenia Gazette was proud and happy Wednesday because of its selection Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Associated Ohio Dailies in Columbus as one of the "distinguished publications of its class" in Ohio.

The selection was made from sample papers submitted by thirty publishers of papers having less than 10,000 circulation from all over the state. A group of judges appointed by A. O. D. officials made the selection as a closing feature of the annual convention in Columbus Monday and Tuesday.

The Athens Messenger, published by Gordon K. Bush, was awarded the silver loving cup as the outstanding Ohio daily newspaper in the classification. The Messenger is a model small city newspaper and serves as a laboratory for journalism students from Ohio University, located at Athens. Students are given credit for work on the Messenger and because of this arrangement the Messenger is highly staffed in all departments.

No second place was selected but three papers were selected as "distinguished publications" in this class as follows: The Dover Daily Reporter, Dover, O., published by J. A. Hoopengardner; The Bellefontaine Examiner, Bellefontaine, O., published by Frank G. McCracken and the Xenia Gazette, Xenia, O., published by J. A. Chew. The Coshocton Tribune, Coshocton, O., published by Fred S. Wallace, was given honorable mention. The papers entering submitted two copies of successive publication dates before February 1 to the committee, and the judges based their decision on: amount and quality of local news, amount and quality of national news; village and agricultural news; advertising; editorial leadership and make-up and press work. The Gazette feels it was significantly honored by being rated so highly among the many excellent daily newspapers in Ohio.

CHICAGO CAMPAIGN AGAINST CRIME IS BRINGING RESULTS

Gangsters Leaving City
To Prevent Arrest

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Outraged Chicago's unrelenting drive of gunmen and gang terrorists began to bear fruit today with definite reports from the underworld that a wholesale exodus of hoodlums was in progress.

Unpaid policemen, continuing their raids on gang hangouts, reported that the wholesale arrests and grand jury indictments against gun-toters is driving criminals from the city. Reports of mounting crime for neighboring cities bear out the effectiveness of the campaign.

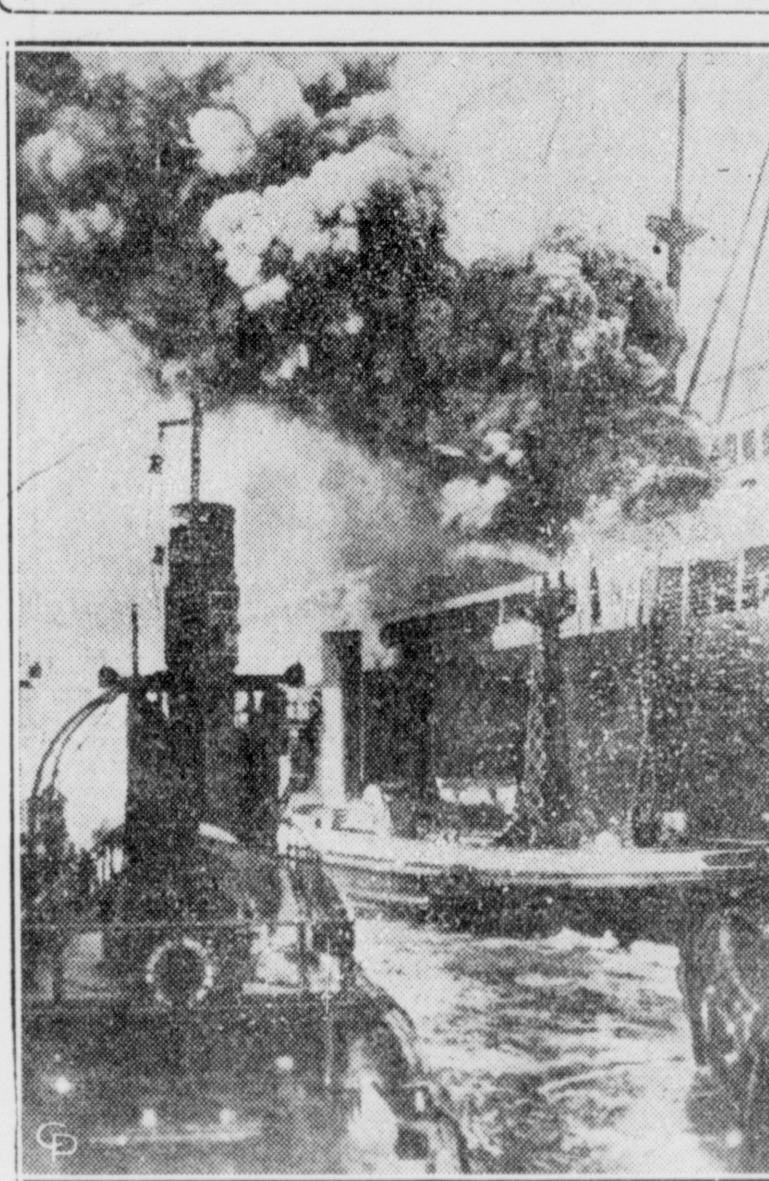

The grand jury brought true bills against sixteen gangsters yesterday for gun-carriage, and under the rigid new code conviction on this charge will mean penitentiary sentences.

Colonel Robert Randolph, president of the association of commerce, intimated that his committee formed to end the reign of murder for a new set of drastic laws which will aid Chicago in its fight against the criminal.

FIRES CAUSE LOSS

MT. VERNON, O., Feb. 12.—Damage of $48,000 was caused by two fires in the business section here, it was estimated today. The flames destroyed the R. L. Shaw funeral home, causing a loss of $43,000 and damaged the home of Frank Tydings to the extent of $5,000, late yesterday.

BLASTS AND FIRE SINK OCEAN LINER

View of the North German Lloyd liner Munchen snapped blazing at her pier in the North River, New York, just before sinking after three explosions ripped through the hull of the ship causing one death and injuring five. Three firemen were reported missing. The Munchen had just arrived from Bremen and had discharged her passengers.

NINE ARRESTED FOR DARING ASSAULT ON COUNCIL CHAMBERS

Three Policemen Are Hurt; 1500 Rioters
In Battle

CLEVELAND, Feb. 12.—Nine men, including one 19-year-old youth, were under arrest here today as the ring-leaders of the tatterdemalion legion of 1,500 unemployed rioting Communists who battled twenty police in a wild melee of flashing knives, swinging nightclubs and flying fists on the steps of City Hall late yesterday while attempting to storm the council chambers to demand work.

Three policemen were injured, one seriously, in the riot which paralleled the recent Communist riots in New York and Milwaukee. Several scores of the rioters suffered bruises from kicks and blows received during the wild demonstration.

A mass meeting of the jobless will be held in Public Square at 5:30 p. m. today to protest "police brutality," the Communist "council of the unemployed" announced this morning. It was also declared that another demonstration will be staged Monday.

A circular distributed by the Communists announcing the protest meeting today, declared that yesterday's riot would "not stop the workers from fighting."

Police Lieut. Oliver Torrence was reported in a serious condition today. He was severely pummeled and given a terrific beating by the madmen rioters. Hospital authorities reported he may have been injured internally.

CLIFTON ASKS HELP
IN MAKING SURVEY OF BUS SITUATION

State Director Of Education Calls For Co-operation

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 12.—With the centralized rural schools at stake, rural school officials throughout Ohio today were in receipt of a plea from John L. Clifton, state director of education, for cooperation in making a thorough, statewide survey of the school bus situation.

"I feel sure that you will appreciate, as I do, the serious situation that confronts us in this matter," Clifton declared. "We have had a hard fight to centralize the rural schools to their present status, and the matter of transportation has been one of the high points of the opposition. Already the foes of centralization are pointing to various features of the school bus situation as justification of their opposition. The challenge is squarely up to you and me to clarify the situation or to accept the criticism."

"I believe that boards of education that have been careless, or delinquent, in any particular will be quick to bring their transportation facilities up to standard when they have a standard to work toward. With this thought in mind, I am submitting this general survey. My sincere desire is to co-operate with local school boards in perfecting school bus operations."

In conducting this survey, Clifton has arranged for the collection of data detailing the nature and condition of school bus equipment, physical qualifications of the drivers, and enumerating important facts in connection with the routes traversed by these buses.

Condition of the crossings, nature of protection afforded, and the personal habits of the drivers—smoking, drinking, etc.—are included in the data to be collected during this survey.

OHIO REFORMATORY POPULATION GAINS

MANSFIELD, Feb. 12.—For the first time in the history of the Ohio State reformatory, the number of prisoners confined in the institution passed the 3,000 mark, it was revealed by Superintendent T. C. Jenkins today.

Inmates received at the reformatory Tuesday afternoon swelled the population total to 3,007. The previous high mark in the number of prisoners confined in the institution was on March 31, 1929, when 2,980 inmates were registered.

Auto Hits Culvert North Of Xenia; Sister
Not Hurt

Mrs. Dorothy Tanner, about 30, Cincinnati, is in Espey Hospital with perhaps fatal injuries suffered when a Pierce Arrow coupe driven by her sister, Mrs. Lucille Garrison, Union, Ky., crashed into a cement abutment at the overhead bridge on the Springfield Pike, three miles north of Xenia, at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday night.

Mrs. Tanner was thrown out of the machine but her right arm became wedged between the abutment and the auto. The forearm, from the elbow down, was torn almost to shreds. Hospital attaches say the arm will have to be amputated and that her present condition is so serious that an examination to determine the entire extent of her injuries cannot be made.

Although the car was completely wrecked, Mrs. Garrison escaped with minor injuries.

The sisters were driving from Union, Ky., to Bellefontaine, O., for a visit with friends and unfamiliarity with the road was held responsible for the accident.

The pike curves sharply to the left beneath the Pennsylvania Railroad viaduct at that point and the coupe, traveling rapidly, did not negotiate the turn but smashed squarely into the stone culvert.

A passing autoist, O. C. Mitchell, 231 E. Church St., brought the sisters to Espey Hospital, it was announced.

TRY POLICE MAJOR RESULT OF CHARGES

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 12.—Major Elmer D. (Tip) O'Neil of the Cincinnati police department, was to go on trial here today on charges that he had induced the suppression of evidence in a case in traffic court.

The charges were placed against O'Neil yesterday following a hearing before the city manager at which Patrolman Timothy O'Leary was charged with failure to present a case properly, and with the suppression of evidence.

WILL MOUNT HOOVER CATCH TO DECORATE FISHING CLUB ROOM

Will Hang Beside Zane
Grey Catch Of 122
Pounder

LONG KEY, Fla., Feb. 12.—The forty-five-pound sailfish that President Hoover landed on the first day of his winter vacation here is to be mounted and hung in the big living room of the Long Key fishing club.

That is, of course, unless he catches a bigger one, in which event the extra poundage will get the call.

George W. Schmitts, manager of the fishing club, had the sailfish skinned and sent to the taxidermist who does all his work for mounting.

The presidential catch will hang alongside a number of extraordinary fish. Of chief interest is the 122-pound sailfish that Zane Grey landed after a seven hour battle over ten years ago. Grey was president of the fishing club for the years 1917-19.

Mr. Hoover will have to exert himself for the first of the week to live up to his reputation as a fisherman of more than average ability. Yesterday, Dr. Vernon Kellogg, one of his guests, caught a sailfish weighing fifty-two pounds and a guest at the fishing camp brought one in that came to sixty-three pounds. Seventy-one pounds is the record for the season in this type of fish.

Today, the executive and his friends put off in their launches to try their luck off Long Key as against yesterday's cruise up the coast to Alligator Lake.

The president is responding rapidly to his first holiday. Already the hot tropical sun has burned him a bright red and he will return to Washington well tanned.

rest are charged with assault and battery on Lieut. Torrence. They are Tom Rider, 40, and Basil Lignos, 32. The nineteen-year-old youth who is being held is said to have goaded Rider and Lignos into beating the policeman with shouts of "Give it to him! Give it to him!"

The battalion of jobless marched on to City Hall late yesterday afternoon when they had been recruited by fiery oratory in Public Square. A meeting of the city council committee on public welfare with representatives of the council of unemployed was under way at the time.

Nearly 500 of the tattered-mallion legion was admitted to the floor of the council chamber. Those who were left outside set up a disturbance and it was when police attempted to quiet the mob and to clear the streets and sidewalks, that a half dozen men leaped at Lieut. Torrence. Immediately the mob grew wild and turned the scene into a furious melee.

Police reinforcements attempted to aid in quelling the riot, but the large numbers of the jobless army proved too much for the handful of police.

It was only when two fire trucks shrieked up to the scene and threatened to give the maddened mob a ducking that the army of jobless retreated.

After the riot had subsided to some extent the council conference resumed its deliberations. A motion was unanimously adopted by the council committee to call upon the citizens of Cleveland to give food and clothing for the destitute jobless.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 12.—Inefficient employers were today charged with the blame for unemployment.

Speaking before the American Association of Social Workers here last night, William Leiserson, economics professor of Antioch College, declared that business "hands out more bunk than politicians."

He condemned business and industry with a deliberate attempt to suppress the facts about unemployment, and gave statistics showing that requests for charitable relief are nearly double that of a year ago.

The remedy for the present state of affairs, Prof. Leiserson said, is to "make a noise about it and get yourself hated, even as I am doing."

following, become associated with the gunmen and racketeers themselves.

Judge Hyland declared one of the major problems of nearly every city in the country is to obtain high caliber and fearless men to hold public office.

"There is a lack of men with individuality and ability who, at the same time are independent and free of obligations to any group of men—political or otherwise," said former Mayor Hyland. "Our leading cities do not have their best available timber in public office."

"Worth while men in our various big cities often avoid public office because they realize if they do their duty fearlessly they will be persecuted and attacked. This is not unfortunate but it is true."

He said that when he went into the mayor's office in New York City in 1915 the "protegees group" tried to "get" him.

"First they tried to get to me through powerful politicians," Hyland related, in revealing the difficulties in the path of a man holding high public office, "but that didn't work."

"Second they tried to get me through social recognition. This insidious procedure didn't work either."

"Then they tried to get me by the use of money. When that didn't work they tried to get me by abuse and by talk about indictment by the grand jury and state investigating committees."

"When that didn't work they organized to drive me out of the mayor's office by bitterly criticizing me in the press and getting to the political boss so I would be refused a re-nomination."

Hyland spoke not in bitterness but as a matter of information. He said that when public men have to do their sworn duty under such circumstances it is no wonder that many capable business and professional men shy from accepting political office of any kind.

"MALICE TO WARD NONE"

Portrait Of Lincoln By Artist Who Sat On Emancipator's Knee

By MINA H. CASWELL

Central Press Writer

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 12.—One of the greatest portraits of Abraham Lincoln now is in the possession of the Portland Society of Art. It is by Douglas Volk of New York City. It may be said to represent the work of two generations, as Lincoln was the life study of Leonard W. Volk, the sculptor, as it has been the life study of his son, Douglas, the artist.

Douglas Volk has painted three Lincoln portraits, and portraits of King Albert, Lloyd George, General Pershing and other celebrities, his work having found place in the leading galleries of America.

"I painted three portraits of Lincoln because one was not enough to express my conception of his personality," said Volk in commenting on the series of paintings, the third of which, entitled "With Malice Toward None," was completed in Volk's likeness studio, where it was begun two years and a half earlier. The first showing of the portrait was at the Portland Art Museum, under the auspices of the American Art Federation of Washington, D. C., prior to its exhibition at the Sesqui-Centennial in Philadelphia, Pa. It was also exhibited in many other large cities, before it was permanently placed in the Portland Art Museum.

Although Volk has completed at least three later portraits of Lincoln, it is said by critics that "With Malice Toward None" will remain a standard for Lincoln portraits.

the sculptor, the elder Volk, in Chicago, April, 1869, and the casts of the president's hands taken the Sunday following his nomination. The life mask in Douglas Volk's possession is the third removed from the original. These relics are included in a collection at his summer home.

The first portrait of Lincoln by Douglas Volk was a head in profile, reproducing merely the physical characteristics of the man. It was begun perhaps twenty years ago, the artist relying largely on the life mask and his father's written description.

The second portrait is known as the Albright, also a profile, which was begun in 1920 and finished in 1922. It was painted partly in Maine and the remainder in New York City.

"With Malice Toward None"

The third portrait in the series, "With Malice Toward None," was completed in Volk's likeness studio, where it was begun two years and a half earlier. The first showing of the portrait was at the Portland Art Museum, under the auspices of the American Art Federation of Washington, D. C., prior to its exhibition at the Sesqui-Centennial in Philadelphia, Pa. It was also exhibited in many other large cities, before it was permanently placed in the Portland Art Museum.

Although Volk has completed at least three later portraits of Lincoln, it is said by critics that "With Malice Toward None" will remain a standard for Lincoln portraits.

New yet sixteen years old! GENERAL MOTORS' lowest-priced eight

The development of the New Oakland Eight in reality goes back sixteen years. Several of the engineers responsible for its design participated in the production of General Motors' first eight, in 1914. Their extensive knowledge of eight-cylinder engines has resulted in a car of remarkably sound basic design, as well as one which has many advanced features. Its 85-horsepower engine develops one horsepower for every 37 pounds of car weight. This explains why few cars are as fast—why few, if any, can climb hills so quickly or accelerate so swiftly in traffic. Those who have driven it know how well it merits the description, "the car with superior performance." The New Oakland's power plant is also exceptionally smooth. Its inherent eight-cylinder smoothness has been increased by a complete down-draft fuel system—new type cylinder heads insuring uniform combustion—laminated steel spring and rubber engine mountings. Considering its superior performance, exceptional smoothness and the beauty of its new Fisher bodies, the New Oakland Eight is very moderately priced. Thus many who have wanted to own a fine eight-cylinder automobile will find it a car of unusual appeal. Come in and drive it today.

CEDAR CLIFF CHAPTER HAS REGULAR MEETING.

Members of Cedar Cliff Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution of Cedarville delightfully entertained their husbands and brothers at an annual Washington's Birthday dinner at the United Presbyterian Church, Cedarville, at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday evening.

The dining room of the church was beautifully decorated for the occasion using the colors of red, white and blue. Small flags were used in the center of the tables.

Following the dinner an interesting program was given. Mrs. Charles Ervin, regent, presided at the meeting. The program opened with the guests singing "America" and saluting the flag. Roll call was answered by each one naming an American patriot.

Mrs. Walter Corry accompanied at the piano by Miss Phillips of Cedarville College, sang two groups of solo numbers, "The Little Girl With an Air," "The Banjo Song," "The Last Song" and "The Last Rose of Summer."

Mrs. J. P. White of Xenia closed the program with an interesting address upon the subject of "The Objective of the Daughters of the American Revolution." D. A. R. as set forth by George Washington in His Farewell Address.

Mrs. White said that Washington advised, "To develop and enlighten public opinion to afford young and old with such advantages as shall develop in them the largest capacity for performing the duties of American citizens."

Mrs. Corry followed with a group of old songs. Mrs. W. W. Galloway and Mrs. Harry Hammon were hostesses for the evening.

CHURCH TO HAVE SOCIAL GATHERING

A regular monthly social gathering of the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church will be held at the church at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening.

"A Village School" will be the feature sketch of the evening. Men and women of today will take the parts of the school children of yesterday. Several guests of the congregation will furnish part of the program. Refreshments will be served and a silver offering taken to defray the small expense.

The social is being sponsored by the Ruth Guild Missionary Society of the church. Mrs. Arthur V. Miller is chairman of the committee in charge.

Members of the Dorcas Class of the First Lutheran Sunday School and their families will have a covered dish supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Nichols, New Burlington Pike, Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock. Games and a social time will be enjoyed. Each family is invited to bring a covered dish, sandwiches and a pie.

All members of Pride of Xenia Council No. 140, Daughters of America, are requested to attend the regular meeting, Thursday evening. A Valentine social hour will follow the meeting. Refreshments will be served.

LUTHER LEAGUE WILL HAVE VALENTINE PARTY.

Members of the Luther League of the First Lutheran Church and their friends will hold a Valentine party Wednesday evening. The affair will be held in the Sunday School rooms of the church, 303 W. Main St., and will be preceded by a short business meeting beginning at 7:30, according to Mary Maxwell, president of the Lutheran young people's organization.

Arrangements of the party are in the hands of the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Paul McFarland 426 W. Second St. They are entertaining the group at the church because of the number of persons who are planning to attend this monthly social affair.

Each person attending is asked to bring a Valentine. A novel exchange will be made during the evening as part of the entertainment. League members are also asked to bring a guest to the affair and all members of the church are also invited to attend.

The local Luther League was recently granted a regular charter from the executive secretary of Ohio Luther Leagues, the Rev. Rudolph Schulz, Jr., Columbus. The granting of this charter came as a result of the high character of the meetings held and the splendid progress that was made by the organization. This charter also entitles the local league to the privileges of the International Luther League of which the Ohio leagues are a part.

Mr. Elwood Swan, Kansas City, Mo., former Xenian, is spending some time in this city on business. Mr. Swan is connected with the Hoover and Allison Co., at the Kansas City plant.

All members of Mrs. I. W. Clouse's Sunday School Class, the Constant Workers Class of the First M. E. Church and their families are invited to attend the Valentine party, at the basement of the church at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening. A covered dish supper will be served and each family is asked to bring a covered dish.

Union Community Club will meet at the school house Friday evening for the regular monthly meeting. Each one is asked to bring a dime.

Mrs. Geo. Tribbey (Ednah Michener), underwent a serious operation at City Hospital at Springfield, Monday morning and is reported to be doing as well as could be expected.

Mrs. W. H. Tilford, N. Detroit St., spent Tuesday in Morrow, O., with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Whitacre.

Plans are being made for a Washington's Birthday party for members of the Masonic Club and their families at the Masonic Temple, Friday evening, February 21. An interesting program is being planned and will be announced later.

VALENTINE PARTY ENJOYED AT CHURCH TUESDAY

A Valentine party sponsored by members of the Berean class of the First Reformed Church at the church Tuesday evening was attended by approximately one hundred guests of the church and Sunday School.

Following the invocation by the pastor, the Rev. W. W. Foust, a bountiful covered dish supper was served. The tables were daintily decorated with a color scheme of red and white in keeping with the Valentine season. Lighted candles furnished light for the evening. Upon the arrival of the guests each one was presented a section of a red heart. The sections were later pieced together to form friendly groups for the supper hour. After each heart was pieced together verses on the Love of God were found to be written on them and were read at the close of the supper.

An old fashioned spelling bee for the senior guests present offered much amusement for the evening. The bee was conducted by Dr. G. W. Kuhn. A large Valentine box was another feature of the evening.

Appreciation was expressed to Mrs. Edwin Buck, chairman and her committee for the success of the party.

The Hawkins Community Club will meet at the school house, Friday evening and an interesting program has been arranged. Miss Kate Schwebel will give an address based on her trip to Germany last summer. A community Valentine box will add to the amusement of the evening. Each family is asked to bring fruit and the public is invited.

The condition of Mrs. V. H. Moore, N. Detroit St., who has been ill at her home for the last three weeks, is somewhat improved.

The regular meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps will be held at the hall Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. George Fuller, patriotic instructor of the corps, will present a program of music and readings in honor of the birthdays of Lincoln and Washington. All past comrades are invited to attend the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Esty Spurlock, of Jamestown Pike, are announcing the birth of a daughter, Tuesday. The baby has not been named.

All members expecting to attend the dinner and musical program to be given at the Parish House next Monday evening by members of the Xenia Woman's Music Club are asked to notify Mrs. Charles Adair, N. Galloway St., by Thursday evening. Those not bringing guests are also asked to notify Mrs. Adair.

Trinity M. E. Church Choir will meet for rehearsal Thursday evening instead of Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the church. The rehearsal is important and all members are urged to be present.

Funeral services for Mrs. Delta Anna Fox, who died Monday night, will be held at 1:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon at Mt. Olive Church, near New Vienna. The funeral cortege will leave the house at 12 o'clock. Friends may call at the residence, 39 Trumbull St., any time Wednesday evening.

GETS SCOUT HONOR

LESTER THOMAS PRICE.

Lester Thomas Price, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Asa T. Price, 249 Pleasant St., is the first Xenia Boy Scout to receive his Eagle badge while still a Scout in the ranks.

He received the award at the Court of Honor at Springfield last Saturday. Price earned his letter on the Central High School football team last fall and is a regular guard on the Buccaneer basketball team now. His ambition after high school days is to enter the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

Mr. Charles Taylor, E. Second St., is confined to his home, suffering from an attack of the grip.

Mr. and Mrs. John North, Jr., (Ruth Glass), W. Second St., are announcing the birth of a son Wednesday morning. The baby is their first child and has been named John North III.

Miss Mildred Horner, N. West St., is confined to her home this week suffering from a severe cold.

Members of Zanetta Council No. 120, D. of P., are sponsoring a benefit card party at Redman's Hall, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. Euchre and five-hundred will be in play and everyone is invited to attend.

A. C. Turrell Union, W. C. T. U. will meet at the home of Mrs. C. E. Huffman, W. Third St., Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The subject of the afternoon will be "The Torch Bearing Women." All members are asked to bring or send their reports of their points to the captains so the captains can make their reports at the meeting.

KIWANIS GOVERNOR ADDRESSES CLUB

Gay O'Donnell, Covington, governor of Kiwanis Club, was honor guest at the regular weekly dinner meeting of Xenia Kiwanians at Elks' Hall, Tuesday evening.

Following the dinner Mr. O'Donnell gave a short talk concerning the Kiwanis Club. The guest speaker of the evening was Alfred Ankeney, returned missionary from Japan, who gave an interesting address on the "Political, Economic, Social and Religious Problem in Japan."

Poems that Live

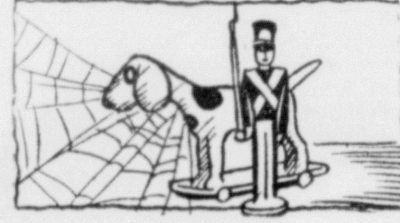

LITTLE BOY BLUE

THE little toy dog is covered with dust,
But sturdy and staunch he stands;
And the little toy soldier is red with rust,
And his musket moulds in his hands.
Time was when the little toy dog was new,
And the soldier was passing fair;
And that was the time when our Little Boy Blue
Kissed them and put them there.

"Now, don't you go till I come," he said,
"And don't you make any noise!"
So, toddling off to his trundle-bed,
He dreamt of the pretty toys;
And, as he was dreaming, an angle song
Awakened our Little Boy Blue—
Oh! the years are many, the years are long,
But the little toy friends are true!

Ay, faithful to Little Boy Blue they stand,
Each in the same old place,
Awaiting the touch of a little hand,
The smile of a little face;
And they wonder, as waiting the long years through
In the dust of that little chair,
What has become of our Little Boy Blue,
Since he kissed them and put them there.

JOHN GILBERT

Hollywood is used to dramatic scenes, but the fist fight staged by the handsome John Gilbert, movie idol, and Jim Tully, writer of hobo tales and film gossip, has caught the attention of the whole colony. It may be that Gilbert still resents an article which Tully wrote about him for a magazine, or there may be another reason. At any rate Gilbert is nursing a sore jaw which he got when Tully knocked him down after a verbal tiff in a Hollywood cafe.

CRESWELL'S CHANCES FOR U. S. MARSHAL'S POST ARE GAINING

Friends of County Auditor Paul H. Creswell, who returned from Washington, D. C., today, are confident that his chance for appointment as U. S. Marshal for the southern Ohio district, succeeding the late Stanley Borthwick, has increased with developments in the last few days.

It is believed that the appointment will be made at an early date by President Hoover, upon recommendation of Senators Fess and McCulloch of Ohio and supporters of several aspirants are bringing pressure to bear, seeking endorsement for their candidates.

Failure of the Hamilton County Republican organization to endorse a candidate for the position was expected to react in favor of the Xenia man. Committee meetings held to consider candidates, adjourned without reaching an agreement to throw the organization's support to any one candidate, and it is believed that this will result in strengthening Creswell's position.

Mont Spillman, Troy, at present one of the deputy marshals, has waged an active campaign for the endorsement, but reports from political sources indicate he lacks support in Washington and it is believed his strength is waning. Likewise the candidacy of Sheriff Bob Blank, of Montgomery County, is reported to have lost ground considerably. It is said that Blank's friends have been told that since Dayton has Federal Judge Nevin and that U. S. District Attorney Haverly E. Mau, is from Montgomery County, that that county cannot also expect the office of U. S. Marshal.

In the opinion of Creswell supporters these developments have had the effect of strengthening his position. Senator Fess has indicated that only "dry" World War veterans will be considered and the Xenian fulfills these qualifications.

SIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A faithful man shall abound with blessings; but he that maketh haste to be rich shall not be innocent. To have respect of persons is not good; for a piece of bread that man will transgress.—Proverbs xxviii, 20, 21.

HOUSEHOLD RESEARCH

We read that the city of Peoria, Ill., through its research bureau, recently conducted a survey of the financing plan of various private homes. According to the report of the survey much of interest was discovered, much that is worth knowing.

Intelligent spending plans for everyone from children up to persons with $20,000 annual salary might be part of a great national thrift method. Small and apparently negligible items of home expense are apt to play havoc in the average family, it seems.

Better values and, therefore, greater happiness in the home, can be had through sound purchasing plans. Thus business and sentiment are served better by the more intelligent use of each family dollar.

In the same home where a child six years old is taught to buy hair-ribbons from a weekly allowance of 20 cents, the mother much more easily arranges to furnish and equip the house by allotting part of each week's income to buy standard, approved devices.

Setting aside the money until she has the total, or spending each month a few carefully budgeted dimes, she pays for a toaster almost before she realizes she has it.

In many such homes, keeping a complete, up-to-date inventory is another housekeeping improvement. For fire and theft insurance, credit agencies and the sub-leasing of homes it is invaluable. One copy always should be kept in a fireproof spot outside the house.

ART AND ENVIRONMENT

There is no such thing as a first-class artist in a second-class country. The artist must be able to draw on the total energies that surround him. Nothing but an Elizabethan England could have produced Shakespeare; nothing but an England in the full tide of business and inventive energy could have produced that galaxy of talent which we find at the time of Dickens, Thackeray and Tennyson. When energy takes the form of war, as it did in France we find that the artistic equivalent of it is criticism. The country that develops a theory of social organization is almost always bound to develop a great music as was true in Germany. But one can see these various energies slowly declining in the countries to which at this moment they seem to belong. Money and literature are steadily retreating from England to America. Ideas of war and of criticism are steadily departing from France to Italy. Theories of social organization and music seem to be slipping from Germany to Russia.

A MERCHANT PRINCE

The Honorable Peter C. Larkin, Canadian High Commissioner in London, who recently died at his post, was rated as one of Canada's merchant princes. The fortune he made in the tea trade was liberally drawn upon for political and philanthropic objects. Sir Wilfrid Laurier was his friend and is said frequently to have consulted him on economic questions; and Sir Wilfrid's protegee, Mr. Mackenzie King, when he became prime minister, appointed his late chief's staunch supporter to the post from which death has now relieved him after eight years of service.

"Advertise" was Mr. Larkin's motto in business. "Advertise Canada" was his motto in London. Among the means which he adopted to that end were rescuing the high commissionership from the status of a subordinate branch of the old colonial office of Great Britain; and removing its quarters from a dingy side-street to the present imposing Canada House on Trafalgar square. The years that Mr. Larkin was high commissioner, which is the nearest approach to an ambassador's dominion may maintain close to its sovereign, saw the office increase in importance and dignity diplomatically, while his business experience was of no inconsiderable service in the promotion of trade between Great Britain and the empire's greatest dominion.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

WHEN BUTLER SAID DON'T

Educators, newspapers and conversation-makers everywhere are all stirred up because Dr. Butler president of Columbia said "don't" where he should, according to the rules of grammar, have said "doesn't." Well, well, what better rule for English than the manner of the best speakers? And there is hardly a better speaker in all America than Dr. Butler. If Dr. Butler says "don't" where we thought it was "doesn't," then "don't" ought to be good enough for the rest of us. Perhaps what we need are a few men with the courage to change rules.

AS TO SUCCESS

There is no end to definitions of success. The possession of money is still far in the lead as an indication of success. Wise George White, 93 years old, died the other day in New York. For 50 years he served as teacher and principal in the public schools. He left an estate of less than $10,000. Many of New York's leading lawyers, merchants, and financiers went to school to Principal White. They formed the George White Alumni Organization. At one of the last dinners Mr. White told his "pupils" that material wealth meant nothing to him, that he was content to accept as his reward the feeling that he had done some good in the world, particularly in the spread of knowledge.

Few men care so little for material wealth. Many say they care little, but they are not truthful. And perhaps few men achieve a greater success than the old school teacher, if we are to judge by the inner consciousness of satisfaction. What else is there to judge by and what else matters?

FRANKNESS

If a man making a speech expresses himself as frankly and as honestly as he knows how, he is almost certain to have it said that he made a good speech. Nothing passes so quickly from the speaker to the audience as the sense and spirit of honesty.

SUCCESS AGAIN

Speaking of success, listen to Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah: "I am drawing dividends on the life I have lived since boyhood. I've never, never drunk liquor in my life. I've never smoked. I've always eaten good, plain food and loved work. I never was lazy and never saw a time when I didn't have plenty to do."

"I've wronged nobody. I was fortunate in marrying as perfect a young woman as ever lived. My children have had a marvelous mother, a superb home-maker. Of all the blessings received by me, she was the greatest."

His wife died in 1923.

THE QUESTION BOX

CENTRAL PRESS
WASHINGTON BUREAU

Answers to questions of information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions.

To explain the federal reserve system, as asked by a Question Box querist, would require a book. Compactly put, the system's purpose is to let out more money when the country is threatened with "tight times," and to retract money when it is so abundant as unduly to inflate prices or stimulate reckless speculation. This is accomplished, under direction of the federal reserve board, through the 12 federal reserve banks, which discount the "paper" of member banks on comparatively liberal terms when business evidently really needs more currency, but impose harder terms when there obviously is too much in circulation to be healthy. The idea, briefly, is to discourage dangerous booms and buoy up slumps; stabilization.

Usury

What is usury? The taking of interest in excess of the rate fixed by law as a maximum. This maximum varies with states—generally from 6 to 8 and even 10 per cent; in a few instances up to 12, by contract. The term "usury" formerly was applied to interest in general, but is obsolete now in that sense.

Henry Clay?

Who said, "I'd rather be right than be president"? This remark generally is credited to Henry Clay. However, the average public man of the past has an epigram or two attributed to him which never occurred to him in his lifetime.

A Crank's Shot

Was the late Theodore Roosevelt's assassination attempted during or after his term as president? The late Colonel Roosevelt was shot in the breast by a crank on Oct. 14, 1912, while delivering a speech in Milwaukee during his unsuccessful campaign for president on the Bull Moose ticket, a little more than three years and seven months after his retirement from the White House. Though the wound was serious, the bullet lost some of its force by striking a bundle of papers in the colonel's pocket, and he finished his speech before submitting to a physician.

No Bonanza

What is the status of the suit brought by the heirs of Peter P. Pichlynn against the Choctaw nation?

After approximately 20 years' litigation, a $3,100 judgment recently was awarded by the court of claims, for division among 30 to 40 Pichlynn heirs, and Harvey B. Cox of the justice department was appointed administrator. The money is available as the various heirs establish title to their shares before the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

MODERNISTS

NEW YORK CITY, New York.—Every book you pick up nowadays, with very few exceptions, somewhere along in the course of the yarn you're sure to encounter a female in "seduced circumstances."

The modernist's sole claim to distinction is his ability to dent his hat another way.

Following is a list of the ancient shows, some of them more than a quarter of a century old, dug up in desperation by frantic producers in an effort to keep their theaters lighted.

"Mlle. Modiste," "Prince of Pilsen," "Babes in Toyland," "Fortune Teller," "Robin Hood," "Naughty Marietta," "Sherlock Holmes," "The Merry Widow," with the following on the way: "Red Mill," "Wizard of the Nile," "Chocolate Soldier," "May Time" and "Spring Maid."

A QUIANT CUSTOM

Ruth Finley, author of "Old Patchwork Quilts and the Women Who Made Them," is authority for the statement that once upon a time the comforter performed an important social function. If a guest wasn't entirely welcome or if the visit were too protracted the best quilt was removed from the spare room bed and a quilt of lesser degree substituted.

There ought to be some way of reviving that quaint custom today. It's worth thinking over.

WHAT WOULD YOU SAY?

I am still waiting for somebody to say something really brilliant about the disintegration of the theatre. Every day a score of prominent persons air their ignorance on this subject, but nobody says anything even faintly resembling cleverness. Dr. John J. Holmes said the other day that "the theatre is in a state of pitiable collapse."

If he'd said it was cock-eyed or had a varicose vein or something like that, it wouldn't have been so bad, but "in a state of pitiable collapse"—This being a family newspaper, I shall have to confine myself merely to remarking "Fudge!"—but with a great deal of asperity.

ANOTHER EUROPEAN AIR VISITOR ON THE WAY

SPEAKER LONGWORTH RESENTS REFERENCES TO LOWER HOUSE

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Speaker Nicholas Longworth resents references to the house of representatives as the "lower house" of congress.

For years it has been customary to speak of the senate as the upper house and the house of representatives as the lower one, but it is a custom which Speaker Longworth recently challenged pretty tartly.

He says there is nothing "upper" about the senators' chamber; nothing "lower" about the representatives'; they are on an equality.

Arthur L. Faubel, associate professor of economics of New York university (who also is secretary of the American Tariff League), went even farther than Speaker Longworth the other day.

As a witness before Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway's lobby investigating committee, he intimated that the senate is a kind of congressional verminiform appendix, which ought to be removed, maybe—a superfluous anyway, and somewhat dangerous.

It will be recalled that Joseph R. Grundy, of Pennsylvania, not long ago also expressed himself in favor of reorganizing the senate so as to make it more like the house of representatives. He may have changed his mind since becoming a senator himself, but that was his judgment before he had any personal interest in the matter to prejudice him.

The question of parity between the senate and the house of representatives is debatable.

The "founding fathers" certainly meant the senate to be the more aristocratic body of the two, as they showed by providing for the senators' election by their respective state legislatures, for the very purpose of exempting them from the undignified necessity to scramble for ordinary people's votes, like the representatives. However, the seventeenth amendment took that privilege away from them, leaving them as dependent on popular good will as any other candidates. Still, a senator has the advantage of running only once in six years instead of twice that often. He looks more important, too, in a body of 96 members than lost in a mob of 435—but the pay is the same.

As for lawmaking, it takes both houses to do anything. True, only the house can start financial legislation; yet the senate must vote to make it binding. On the other hand, the senate alone can turn down presidential appointments and reject treaties.

All in all, the senate appears to have the edge. Whether or not it is sufficient to justify calling it the upper chamber is a matter of opinion.

Whereas Speaker Longworth's opinion is in the negative, Professor Faubel's complaint is that the senators have too much power. The professor likens the senate to the British house of lords, which has lost most of its authority in the last two decades, and would have the senate's similarly curtailed, making the house of representatives practically the whole thing, like England's house of commons.

What Professor Faubel overlooks is the fact that two entirely different things have happened to the house of lords and the United States senate. The house of lords is as tony as ever it was, but, just as the professor says, it has lost most of its authority. Twice in succession it put the kibosh on a bill which the house of commons has passed, but if the house of commons passes it a third time it becomes law, regardless of the other chamber. The latter can delay what it dislikes, but not prevent it.

Peach Cobbler Thin Creams
Coffee or Coffee Substitute

This menu was planned for three people. The apple in the omelet is a pleasant change, and it would be a good luncheon dish as well as breakfast.

Today's Recipes

APPLE OMELET—Three apples, one tablespoon butter, four eggs, pinch salt. Melt butter in frying pan, add apples and cook with cover on until soft. Beat eggs well with salt and add to apples. Bake until light brown. Serve on hot buttered toast with sugar and cinnamon, if desired, sprinkled over the top.

CREAMED SPINACH—Boil one pound spinach, squeeze out water and chop fine. Cut two slices bacon in small pieces and fry. Mix spinach and bacon with half a teaspoon salt, half a cup cream, a few gratings of nutmeg and the yolks of hard boiled eggs cut fine. Mold. When serving, garnish with egg whites.

PEACH COBBLER—Six peach halves sliced, one-half cup butter, one cup sugar, two tablespoons butter, one cup milk, two well beaten eggs, one cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt. Put peaches in baking dish and cover with the half cup of sugar. Mix other ingredients in order given, into a batter, pour over peaches and bake 30 minutes in moderate oven.

Graham Muffins—One cup graham flour, one cup white flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons melted shortening, two tablespoons molasses, two-thirds cup milk. Mix dry ingredients and add wet ones to make rather soft batter. Beat well and bake in rings on griddle, filling rings half full.

more but has had a good bit of its aristocracy rubbed off by the seventeenth amendment.

It has had so much rubbed off that it is more popular with the average American than the house of representatives, and this is what licks folk like Speaker Longworth. The speaker realizes that his outfit no longer gets the plaudits, is jealous and takes it out by scolding when mention is made of the object of his rancor as the upper house of congress.

In England the house of commons has it all over the house of lords because the house of lords was so conservative that it had to have its wings clipped.

In America, since the seventeenth amendment's adoption, the senate has become the liberal congressional body, and the house of representatives, bossed by a few conservatives, is rapidly falling so far behind the times that presently its wings will be in danger.

Of course such critics as Professor Faubel do not understand what actually happened in England. Had they been there they would have been horrified, as good conservatives, at the idea of making the house of lords take a back seat for the house of commons.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

WARNED TO KEEP THE PEACE

BIFFER was a good barker. He knew just how to say it. The insects were wild with excitement, and they would have cheered him wildly if he hadn't held up his claw for allence.

"Remember, folks, you are invited guests, and don't forget your manners. Every fellow be kind to his neighbor. Ane one who starts to nip off his neighbor's head or chew off his wings will be put out on the instance. The grounds are well policed. Sir Dragon-Ty is in charge, and he can see what you are up to. He will stand no nonsense, so watch yourself, every one of you!"

"This is a time for fun, not for fights!" chimed in Peter. "Let's take a vote. All of you who are for keeping the peace flap your wings or clap your claws."

From the hubbub there was no doubt but that for once in their lives at least, the insects of every sort and kind were in accord with each other.

And then the circus began. Out of the crowd wriggled a fat, fuzzy creature with a lot of wobbly legs which looked too short and unsteady to bear his weight, but some how they seemed to. His coat was green and trimmed with black spots and a row of white spots that reminded Peter of warts. He didn't think they were particularly pretty. Peter mistook the fellow for a worm until Biffer announced:

"Chinaman Caterpillar, folks! You see before you one of the most thrifty insects known to fame, a fellow who does not believe in wasting a thing, nor in throwing anything away—not even his worn out coat. Every time Chinaman Caterpillar finds out he must get a new coat he eats the other one up to get rid of it and to satisfy his hunger at the same time. Watch, and Chinaman will show you how he does it!"

WHITEHEADS

"Dear Doctor: My trouble is whiteheads. I have had them on my nose all my life, my mother says, and I want to get rid of them. I do not think they are caused by clogged pores because I cleanse my skin twice daily with soap and lukewarm water, followed by a dash of cold water. I read your paper every night and I must say you know your onions."

"MISS THIRTEEN."

The technical name of the whiteheads is milia, and they are the toughest little birds to remove by yourself that ever was! They contain matter similar to that in blackheads: sebum, the oil of the skin. But for some reason or other, perhaps through lack of development, the oil glands are not open and the secretion continues to accumulate. They are "whiteheads," for no dust can get in and blacken them.

After they have formed, nothing can be done except to open them, and, as I have told you, this is a hard job, for the skin over them is thick and tough. You can perhaps manage if they are small, by pricking with a needle (first sterilize it by passing it through a flame once or twice and expressing the contents; but if they are large—they sometimes do grow as large as a pea or larger in elderly people—they should be removed by a skin specialist.

Perhaps they may be prevented from forming by facial massage every day after bathing the face in hot water, followed by cold. This may help the oil to be absorbed, instead of accumulating.

Apparently, in the vocabulary of youth, knowing one's onions means the acme of wisdom, so I thank you, Miss Thirteen, for your compliment.

"Dear Doctor: My breasts get very swollen and sore, not only during my periods, but during the rest of the month, too, and if I press on them a milky fluid oozes out. On the left breast there is also a dark fluid that comes out. It seems as though the nipples are perforated and it comes through several pores. I have been to a physician and he made light of it, but told me to rub them with cocoa butter, which I did, and when it still continued I went back and he said I should use bella donna breast pads. I used these and kept on for three days, during which time I was in misery with the drawing feeling. I still have this condition, and although at times it does not bother me, I know it is there and I am worried. Should I go to another doctor? I am 23, unmarried."

"MISS E."

Yes, I would go to another physician, Miss E. Try to get a competent one this time. You probably have a cystic condition of the glands (especially judging from the "dark" fluid, which sounds as though there were bleeding) which may need surgical drainage or removal of the cysts. This condition is not uncommon. If it is what I think it is, it is not a cancer, it is neglected may have cancer possibilities.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"LET us define mental health as the adjustment of human beings to the world and to each other with a maximum of effectiveness and happiness. Not just efficiency, or just contentment—or the grace of obeying the rules of the game cheerfully. It is all of these together. It is the ability to maintain an even temper, an alert intelligence, socially considerate behavior, a happy disposition. This, I think, is a healthy mind."

The above is printed on the fly-leaf of a new book written by a learned psychiatrist.

Wonder how many of us have this much to be commended "healthy mind!"

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I read your answer to Worried Wife, but my sympathy is with the mother. "Several years ago I knew a family whose son lost his young wife in a tragic and unusual accident. He took his little six-month-old baby home to his people. His mother was old and sick and had raised eight children, but she tenderly cared for the baby for almost a year before he gave her a cent. Four years after he met a woman and married. He makes fair wages and they live in comfort, while his old father and mother and the little child are almost destitute. He never gives them a cent or tries to help. His mother and father went to see him but were cursed and abused and driven from his door. What ought the mother to do about it?"

"MOTHER'S FRIEND."

The mother should take the matter to court and compel the child's father to contribute to his support. You don't think for a moment, I hope, that because I don't believe in older people imposing on young couples and wrecking their homes that I believe in the younger ones abusing their parents?

A MOTHER: I'd like to print your letter just as you wrote it, but such things are not permitted in the paper.

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Spring may be a trifle late this year, there's really no way of telling. The "backbone" of the winter" may still be intact, and if so it's reasonable to expect our weather to grow colder before it's warmer.

Even so, there's a pre-spring feeling in the atmosphere, a vague rebellion in our bones against the dull depression that always sets in at the close of winter.

Women know that almost-time-for-spring cleaning feeling. A friend of mine told me recently her fingers fairly itched this early in the season to clear out her winter closets, give away her winter clothes, clean house generally, redecorate and begin all over again. As she usually goes south during these weeks, it seems unnecessary those who stay in their winter homes all winter, a pre-spring festival of some kind should be observed. I recommend a general clean-up—not of houses, but of bodies, and most particularly, of skins.

The skin has so much taken out of it during the winter with the sudden changes of temperature from outdoors to indoors and vice versa. Not to mention the further insult of soot and smoke from soft coal burning in our towns and cities, that forces it, self into the pores of the skin, often creating unsightly blackheads.

A meticulous cleanliness is necessary, and I mean the sort of cleanliness that could defy a magnifying glass placed in the bright spring sunlight. Clean skin! Clean hair! Clean eyes and eyebrows! It's a joy to look at a face that's really clean, not half-heartedly so and the rest powdered over, but spick-and-span, spotlessly clean with that lovely, luminous purity of color and contour that contributes so very much to personal charm.

What to do, scrub? Yes, but very gently, not violently, with a good washing preparation. Make a soft mass of pore paste with water and work this well into the skin all over the face and throat (tepid) water and follow with your cleansing cream and skin tonic. A pasteurized cream is excellent, as it nourishes and soothes in addition to cleansing, and comes for dry or oily types of skins. A skin-toning lotion suited to your skin acts as the perfect finish.

Wash your eyes in eye lotion to keep them clear and bright. Wash your eyebrows with your face, and always finish by brushing them, especially after you powder. And brush your hair faithfully every night long and hard until your hair is really here.

If a plan proposed by Judge, and E. Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves, were followed out, the penalty system employed in baseball would be applied to basketball and under this system umpires would be empowered to suspend obnoxious players for a definite number of innings instead of for remainder of a game. However, in basketball a man is ruled out for two fouls or longer, depending upon the gravity of the offense and during that time his team carries on with only five players.

There is little merit to this plan, as one baseball expert points out, it would increase squawking and would consequently do more harm than good. Then too, a lot of ball players, who have not the habit of keeping discreetly out of the game, would be disposed, would yell their things out if they were more or less as certain their punishment would be no more severe than an inning out of enforced bench warming. Few players care to risk banishment for a day. Penalties would be so much too frequent.

It would seem better to let well enough alone in this case. Comparatively little trouble mars the average game nowadays and the discipline function well enough to suit almost everyone. Until a proposal obviously superior can be formulated it is difficult to see any reason in changing the present rules because the umpires, supported strongly by league executives, succeed in keeping order most of the time. Looking at it from all angles, the Fuchs plan cannot be considered a satisfactory improvement over present conditions.

Here is what one writer says regarding the plan:

"We have not learned the full details of the Bostonian's new rule, but are wondering if he could have the hockey rule carried out to the extent of compelling a player to play with only eight men until a kicker's penalty of an inning or more expires. If so, we can picture all sorts of wild situations."

"Who would pitch if the hurler were given a stretch on the bench? Who would go behind the bat? Who would catch the ball? Who would serve the term? Who would stop balls slashed towards the infield or between out-landers while a team was a man or two shy of full strength? What would happen if a batter were ejected before finishing his turn at bat? No. Judge Fuchs could not mean anything quite so reaching. He must figure on allowing a substitute during suspensions."

"Letting well enough alone is not always a sound procedure. In this case, however, it is good. Comparatively little trouble mars the average game. No matter how the discipline plans to work out his proposed system, the prospect of a certain increase in umpire baiting sufficient to condemn it."

The list of individual high scorers in the Miami Valley League basketball race has undergone a complete revision as a result of two league games played last week. As was expected, with Xenia Central idle for the second straight week, John Hurley, center, fell from his position at the top of the scoring and the league has a new leader in Hoover. Troy forward, who has tallied thirty-one points in his five league games. Schreiber, Miami forward, went into second place with thirty points, also for five games.

It is probable, however, these boys will not remain the leaders very long because Xenia Central has two more league games on its schedule and Hurley, having scored twenty-eight points in three games, ought to be able to register more than three in the two remaining games unless he breaks a leg or something.

Here is a list of the eleven highest individual scorers in the league to date:

HUNGER STRIKE IS STILL GOING GOOD

WARREN, O., Feb. 12.—Richard Warren, Warren merchant, entered the twenty-eighth day of his hunger strike in Trumbull County jail here today in protest to his incarceration because he refused to pay a $200 fine and costs for molesting a woman.

Despite the threats and entreaties of his wife, relatives and jail authorities, the starving merchant stoically continued to refuse food. The man is beginning to show the serious effects of his self-imposed fast. He is losing weight rapidly. Physicians, however, who have examined him, declare that he is in good physical condition. Tobacco smoke is the only thing that annoys the prisoner. On several occasions he has shown signs of collapsing from the smell of cigarette smoke, but always, in such instances, he braces himself with a drink of water and continues to refuse food.

BELLBROOK HIGH WINS NARROW VICTORY OVER JAMESTOWN FIVE

Bellbrook High School boys' basketball team, runner-up for Greene County Class B title last year, eked out a 15 to 13 victory over the fast Jamestown High quintet in a return game on the Jamestown floor Tuesday night, thereby avenging a 14 to 11 defeat inflicted by Jamestown last week in the season.

Jamestown assumed a 4 to 2 lead at the close of the first quarter but at the half the count was tied, 8 to 8. Bellbrook broke the deadlock and forged ahead, 14 to 10 at the end of the third period.

JUNIOR CLASS WINS FROM SENIORS HERE IN SCHOOL LEAGUE

Protects Early Lead To Take Victory By 24 To 14

Staking itself to a nine-point lead in the first quarter, the junior class basketball team carefully preserved this margin throughout the game and easily defeated the seniors, 24 to 14 in an intra-mural league contest at Xenia Central High School gymnasium Tuesday afternoon.

The juniors had a margin of 12 to 2 at the half and during the first two periods the seniors were held without a single field goal. Both teams tallied twelve points in the last half, the juniors leading 17 to 5 at the close of the third quarter.

Shaffer, forward, tallied nine points to lead the juniors scoring, while K. Finlay, guard, marked up seven points for the losers.

The victory was the first league triumph for the juniors, bringing the team's percentage to the .500 mark. It was the second straight setback for the seniors. The lineups:

AGENTS RAID HOTEL AND SEIZE LIQUOR

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—A new feature in prohibition enforcement—arrest and prosecution of the possessors of liquor in a public place—was announced today by prohibition agents in New York City, as he continued his campaign to mop up New York City.

Announcement that agents would arrest any person displaying liquor in a hotel, cafe or night club followed a raid last night on the Cornish Arms Hotel and a well known cafe. Twenty arrests were made and a small amount of liquor was seized. The raid was the second in two days against hotels, padlocking of which will be sought.

Bedboys, waiters and alleged bootleggers are being disturbed. Campbell and tried to follow the most conservative of modern styles in reporting the event.

Baseball has made great strides in some of its departments since that long ago day in 1861, but none of the strides compares to that made by baseball reporting, which is now the most efficient method of covering a sport event.

Bowling RITICISMS

After reading the sports page one comes to the conclusion that our sterling athletes are suffering from parrot fever.

Babe Ruth is trying to talk himself into $55,000 a year. He'll need a dictionary to do it.

Art Shires, the chattering Chicagoan, has gabbled himself into more scraps than a G. O. P. stump orator touring the Alabama cotton fields. But he makes money.

The football coaches gathered in New York and talked for three days about nothing and then did it.

Sport stars are smart people. They hire themselves as press agents. The first letter in their alphabet is "I."

Athletes may become muscle bound but you'll never find them tongue-tied.

Silence may be golden but it pays no dividends. No athlete ever grabbed a raise in pay by imitating a cigar store Indian taking a nap.

The only way to keep the wolf from your door is to howl louder than he does. That may not be good English but it's worth remembering.

WRONG TEAM

L. Cyphers, manager of the Alpha Celtics, wishes it to be known that it was the Hawker Reformed Church basketball team and not the Beaver Creek Independents which was defeated by a score of 40 to 4 in a preliminary to the Beaver Creek-Caesars contest on the Caesar's last Friday night.

The Bellbrook scoring was about evenly divided between three players, Stephens and Captain Kabie each making five points and L. McHenry, four. Captain Coe, center, tallied seven points for Jamestown. Both teams played a strictly defensive game, accounting for the low score.

In the girls' preliminary, the undefeated Bellbrook sextet, champions of the county, encountered more opposition than had been expected but managed to defeat Jamestown lassies, 20 to 8 to continue its winning streak.

Bellbrook teams visit Spring Valley Friday night for return games. Spring Valley boys, county champs, will seek to make amends for a 22 to 17 setback administered by Bellbrook in the first game of the season, which is the only black spot on their season's record. Jamestown teams play Beaver Creek representatives at Jamestown the same night. The lineups:

In yesterday's story I gave a glimpse of the unique style portrayed by a baseball writer covering a ball game between the Bedford and the Mutuals for the New York Sunday Mercury, dated Oct. 18, 1861.

Compare the following—as it would be written today—with the original story and see which style you prefer:

With the Mutuals leading 8-7 in the third, Matty O'Brien opened the third frame with a scorching single, stole second by an eyelash, McMahon making a perfect throw to the bag only to have the umpire rule Matty safe.

Price hit a line drive for a triple, driving Matty home and bringing the count 9-7. Price himself scored a moment later off a passed ball.

Boerun socked another three-bagger to the suburbs and Peter kept up the good work with a drive that cleared the fence. It was an honest homer but ground rules held Peter on first.

The merry-go-round was now on for fair. F. Seisoth beat out an infield tap, advancing Peter, and when Taylor mopped up Peared, Texas Leaguer, two more tallies peppered the pan and jaded fans began to look longingly toward the exits.

I have taken the same incidents as those told of by the Mercury scribe and tried to follow the most conservative of modern styles in reporting the event.

Baseball has made great strides in some of its departments since that long ago day in 1861, but none of the strides compares to that made by baseball reporting, which is now the most efficient method of covering a sport event.

DAY DREAMS

MRS. COOLIDGE IS POPULAR IN FLORIDA

Folks Like Former "First Lady" On Vacation

(This is the second and last of a series on the Coolidges, who are vacationing at Mt. Dora, Florida.)

MT. DORA, Fla., Feb. 12.—Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, who is vacationing with her husband at Lakeside Inn, on the shore of beautiful Lake Dora, in central Florida, is as popular in this little village as she is back home in Northampton, Mass. Every one in town, and particularly the women folk, say she is "just wonderful."

When they asked her to dedicate a Portugal cypress tree at the community building, she was glad to oblige. Her willingness, her gentleness, her smile for all—rich and poor—has endeared her to the villagers. Each evening she sits in the lounge of the Lakeside Inn, she is the center of an interested and animated group. She is extremely democratic and few persons, not knowing her, would suspect that she is only a short time back she was "the first lady of the land."

She is very "homey" in her demeanor. Each evening she can be found in the hotel lounge, conversing with her women friends or chatting. She likes folks and folks like her.

It is a common sight to see Mrs. Coolidge, alone, strolling along the streets or doing a little shopping. The other day she went into a grocery store which happened to be crowded. Not waiting on for some time she strolled out. Someone recognized her. An employee rushed out with an explanation of how busy they were, but she only smiled. She hadn't minded it a bit.

Mrs. Coolidge has a real sense of humor, as evidenced by a story they tell here. The other day, accompanied by a woman friend or two, she went to Daytona. A girl reporter managed to catch up with her but wasn't sure she had the right party.

"You look a great deal like Mrs. Coolidge," the girl reporter said. "Yes, I've been taken for Mrs. Coolidge a number of times," Mrs. Coolidge replied with a disarming smile.

The girl reporter departed, somewhat nonplussed.

Mrs. Coolidge prefers to remain out of the limelight. On the occasion when she dedicated the cypress tree she was willing to pose for "the good of the cause" than by inclination. Like her illustrious husband, she is very modest.

Mr. Coolidge, too, is often seen in the village. Hardy a day passes that he does not take a long hike through the streets by himself. He nods to passersby who recognize him and occasionally stops to speak.

"The village barber got the kick of his life the other day when Mr. Coolidge came in for a hair cut. "A fine, quiet gentleman," was the barber's verdict. "Very little to say. Just said: 'Not too much off the back.'"

The dorkie who operates the barber shop shoe shine is still talking about how he had the honor of polishing the ex-president's boots. He never thought he'd get a "break" like that.

ANNOUNCE SUBJECT FOR BIBLE CLASS

The subject for study will be the "Gospel of Grace in Romans 11" at the regular weekly Bible Class at the home of Mrs. H. Earl Eavey Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. There will be special music at the class meeting and all women of the community are invited to join in the study. For the previous Thursday afternoon classes have been in attendance and it is hoped that many more may be present this week, as there will be but two more classes in the series.

On Friday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Eavey, the gospel according to Matthew will be continued. Approximately fifteen women have attended the weekly evening classes. Both classes are open to the public.

BOYS DEFEAT GIRLS IN NOVELTY BASKET BALL GAME TUESDAY

Detroit Team Loses 30-19; Park-O-Lights In Victory

Before a goodly throng of several hundred curious cash customers, including a large representation of feminine fans, the All-American Girls' professional basketball team from Detroit, Mich., displayed its wares in a novelty game with the independent boys' team representing the local Krippendorf-Dittman Shoe Co. Tuesday night at Xenia Central High gymnasium. To keep the records straight the boys, as expected, won the game, 30 to 19, but everybody, including the spectators and the players, had a good time.

A mixed game of this nature must inevitably be something of a farce but the girls gave a good account of themselves, particularly in the first half, which ended in their favor, 12 to 10. As a basketball game, it was a particularly good example of a football scrimmage. The game was played under boys' rules and would have been more entertaining if girls' rules had prevailed.

In a preliminary the Xenia Park-O-Light basketball quintet experienced little difficulty in defeating the Bowersville Independents, 23 to 9, leading from start to finish. "Brownie" Herr shot the only field goal made by either team in the second half.

PATIENTS IN PERIL IN HOSPITAL BLAZE

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Lives of hundreds of patients were endangered here today when fire broke out in the laundry building of Michael Reese Hospital, one of the largest in the city.

When firemen first arrived flames were shooting 100 feet into the air and dense clouds of smoke filtered through the hospital building. Two special alarm brought additional firemen and apparatus which sprayed the burning building to prevent the flames spreading to the nurses' home and the hospital, separated from the laundry by a narrow alleyway.

Nurses and internes moved patients to the side of the building away from the fire. The cause of the blaze, which finally destroyed the laundry, a two story structure, is unknown.

MARKETS CLOSED

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—In observance of Lincoln's birthday all New York security and commodity markets, clearing houses and brokerage houses, were closed today.

A large share of the wholesale and retail stores also closed.

FIREMEN INJURED IN DARING RESCUE

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 12.—Three firemen were seriously burned here today when they defied flames sweeping a house to rescue an aged man who was trapped on the second floor.

The injured fire fighters are: Lieut. William Mulcahey, and Firemen Leo Samman and John Kehoe. The man whom they rescued is John Reilly, 83. He was found overcome by smoke lying on the second floor of the burning house.

Mulcahey was burned by falling plaster as he braved the flames to rescue the aged man. Kehoe and Samman were burned by blazing tar from the roof of the house. All of the injured firemen will recover.

Origin of the blaze, which raged for several hours, was being investigated.

POPE CELEBRATES HIS ANNIVERSARY

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 12.—Pope Pius attended a brilliant mass in the historic Sistine Chapel of St. Peter's Cathedral today in commemoration of the eighth anniversary of his coronation.

His Holiness was carried to the chapel in a sedan chair from the Vatican Palace, accompanied by a procession of high church dignitaries and the papal guards in their picturesque costumes.

The mass was celebrated by Cardinal Sincero, the pope sitting in a gilded throne at the side of the high altar. Twenty-three members of the college of cardinals took part in the services.

The King of Sweden and a large number of Italian nobles, as well as most of the diplomatic corps, witnessed the mass.

JEWELER DIES

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 12.—Clifton C. Beverly, 65, prominent Columbus jeweler, is dead at his home here today, a victim of apoplexy. He had suffered a sudden stroke yesterday and died almost immediately. He came to Columbus forty years ago from Virginia.

EDUCATION BOARDS MEETING SATURDAY IN ANNUAL SESSION

The annual meeting of Greene County boards of education, scheduled for next Saturday at Jamestown, will be held at the Methodist Episcopal Church in Jamestown instead of at the village opera house, according to a change in plans, announced Wednesday by Prof. H. C. Aultman, county school superintendent.

Following a brief general meeting at 10 a. m., which will be addressed by Dr. John L. Clifton, state director of education, a separate special conference with board members will be held in the high school auditorium to provide the school boards an opportunity to confer with the director regarding specific school problems arising in their own localities.

A meeting of county teachers is to be held in conjunction with the combined meeting and both groups will hear Dr. Clifton's address as well as a talk by Dr. H. F. McNatt, dean of the college of education at Wittenberg College, Springfield. Music will be furnished by the high school orchestra, the glee club and school chorus and selections from a recent opera given by the school will also be presented.

Subjects for discussion during the meeting include a uniform school term for county schools, fixing opening and closing dates and length of holidays and also the matter of transportation of pupils.

LEGACY OF ORMSBY ESTATE RELEASED AFTER EIGHT YEARS

Unclaimed for eight years, a legacy of $2,732.45, representing her distributive share of the estate of her father, the late Prof. George S. Ormsby, at one time superintendent of Xenia public schools, was sought and obtained Tuesday by Mrs. Carrie W. Ormsby Burns, who appeared in Probate Court. Prof. Ormsby died in 1916.

Announcing they were unable to locate her, Attorney Harry D. Smith and the late Attorney Marcus Shoup, as administrators with the will annexed of the estate of Prof. Ormsby, were permitted by the Probate Court December 4, 1925 to deposit a check for Mrs. Burns' distributive share in the county treasury. They said that a check, cancelled note and bank receipt mailed to Mrs. Burns had never been returned, but the check, after a period of three years had not been presented for payment.

Tuesday, however, a formal application for the money on deposit in the county treasury was made by Mrs. Burns and the claim was allowed by Judge S. C. Wright.

GETTYSBURG HERO REMOVED BY DEATH

CHILLICOTHE, O., Feb. 12.—The holder of the congressional medal of honor, which was presented for gallantry in action at the battle of Gettysburg, Colonel Richard Enderlin, 57, is dead at his home here today. The famous drummer boy of the Civil War died yesterday from the infirmities of old age.

Colonel Enderlin, who was born in Germany, enlisted as a drummer boy in Company C, Third Ohio Volunteer Infantry, at the outbreak of the war, because he was too young to enlist in the regulars.

He was president of the Union Shous Manufacturing Company and the Carbonado Coal Company. He was a Mason for fifty-two years.

READ THIS FIRST:
Herbert Maxwell, guardian of Patricia and Jimmy Blair, twins and joint heirs to an immense fortune, succeeds in making away with half of their estate through the substitution of a fake, resembling Jimmy, when the settlement is made at New York. Maxwell is holding Jimmy, an aphasia victim, prisoner, lieutenant Rex Dallard, Dr. Frank Gordon, both in love with Pat and Nurse Margery Lynne, all war-time friends, have attempted to frustrate the plot, but fail. Maxwell, taking Jimmy to a sanitarium, is seen by Dallard and Dr. Gordon from a taxicab, but escapes with his prisoner through the traffic.

CHAPTER XXXIII

It was a part, oddly enough, that old Maxwell loved to play, the touching character part of the benevolent old friend. Being the direct opposite to his own character he could play it with an ecia that was really astounding. To the kindly, honorable old doctor Maxwell's manner was wonderful.

The yellow taxi in which Dallard and Dr. Gordon had vainly chased the maroon colored Rolls Royce had turned and was speeding back toward 42nd Street and Broadway, the original destination of the two passengers.

"No use mentioning this incident to Pat—that is, right away," said Dallard, both his voice and manner betraying the disgust he felt over the outcome of their attempt to "put a crimp" in Maxwell's game.

"No, it would only worry her, just as—" The young doctor paused in his reply to the other's remark, his troubled gaze peering out unseemingly on the swift-passing street scenes. After a moment he turned back to the man whom, through their mutual love of the same woman, he had come to accept both as friend and rival. "Just as it worries me, Rex," he concluded finally. "And," he added, "as it worries you, too!"

The eyes of Rex Dallard, looking into his, were puzzled as well as a worried look.

"It must have been the real Jimmy Blair, just as you said," was the form of his reply, spoken after a moment in a slow, thoughtful manner. "Otherwise," he continued, "a little more brisly," "he wouldn't have been so anxious to get away from us. And common sense tells us, Frank—" The long upper lip grew down to a line of grim seriousness—"that a man of Maxwell's cold-blooded selfishness would never give up a 'lead-pipe clinch,' a sure level of security, on the mere question of a promise, and that promise given a girl without witnesses."

"No, Frank, if you and I help the little girl we're both in love with—for there's no sense in pretending to each other that we're not." Again the speaker passed while gray eyes looked steadfastly into blue and neither gray nor blue flickered so much as an eyelash. Then: "We have got to get busy, old man, and that right away! Herbert Maxwell has no intention whatever of turning Jimmy Blair over to Pat. So we've got to find the lad, Maxwell has beaten us at every turn so far. The question is—are we going to let him continue getting away with every trick in the game?"

As Rex Dallard put the query constituting the finish of his plain-spoken statement and before the other could reply, the taxicab came to a stop close to the curb on 42nd Street near Broadway. After settling with the driver and adding a generous tip, the two walked around to the entrance of a many-storied office building, entered an elevator and were shot up to where the outlook on New York is an eye-ful.

To a disinterested person in full possession of all the facts as hitherto set forth in this story, the thought may have occurred that, for two young heirs, in this fast-stepping day and age, to wealth exceeding twenty million dollars, Jimmy and Patricia Blair were strangely lacking in friends of the influential type. The average person, doubtless, would question the probability that a brother and sister, sole heirs to such a fortune, would ever act as Jimmy and Patricia are said to have acted.

There might be some skepticism, also, regarding the seeming ease by which Herbert Maxwell came into possession of fourteen million dollars in securities. As a matter of fact, the transfer of twenty million in securities would be conducted in precisely the same way as that of two thousand in securities. The difficult part to understand is how a hard-headed business man like James K. Blair, Sr., could leave such a vast sum for two inexperienced children to take the responsibility of handling. But men are dying every day and leaving

The Theater

It has been at least eight months since Roland West, the director, finished "Alibi," the absolutely swell picture that flicked excitedly at the Bijou a moon ago.

Mr. West, however, constantly refuses to go to work. It is reliably reported that he quit taking his daily dozen because it developed into work. But he has purchased a story—"Love in Chicago"—which he bought from Charles Walt, the only author extant to come to Hollywood and get a job the first day.

Mr. West, however, buys a story for a character or a dramatic sequence or maybe a title. Then he cogitates. And in the course of weeks, Mr. West has a yarn. Then he goes to work. In the meantime his play, "The Unknown Purple," is keeping him in finances. He has just sold the German rights to the stellar German actor Albert Besserman.

Oscar Straus, famous Viennese composer, has come to America to compose original operettas for Warner Bros. He is well known in this country for "The Chocolate Soldier" and "The Waltz Dream."

Mr. West recalled recently that he was earning $500 a week in vaudeville when he was twenty-one years old. He told the managers he had ten people in his cast. But he played each part himself and collected all the salaries.

Mr. West's "Alibi" did more than provide a remarkably well-done picture for talkie audiences. It made Chester Morris, who played the part of the crook in the talkie and did it exceedingly well.

Morris also won honorable mention for one of the "best performances" last September with his work in "Woman Trap." His popularity has grown by leaps and bounds so that he is now receiving $1,000 fan letters a week.

Many of his admirers believe it's time he gets an heroic role with a happy ending and that is just what is going to happen. His first happy ending will be in "The Divorcee," which was formerly known as "Ex-Wife," and which had its name changed by the Will Hays office. In "The Divorcee" Morris will have an opportunity to play with that charming actress, Norma Shearer.

Youth Of Civil War Period Tells Of The Lincoln He Knew When Child At Capitol

Robert Thomas W. Lloyd

"HIS RUGGED FACE APPEARED TO BE ALL THOSE SURROUNDING HIM—CALM AND SAD."

"I SAW HIM AGAIN—AND FOR THE LAST TIME—IN DEATH."

(Editors Note: This story is the personal account of a man who, as a small boy in Civil War days, was a friend and admirer of President Lincoln.)

By THOMAS W. LLOYD

Written for Central Press WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Feb. 12.—When I was a lad of eight, and Abraham Lincoln was president, my father was appointed, chief clerk of the house of representatives at Washington. Our family removed from our home in Pennsylvania to the capital city.

The Civil War was then in full progress. To see Mr. Lincoln face to face was at that time the height of my boyish ambition.

Upon the occasion of an official visit to the White House my father told Mr. Lincoln of this childish wish and with the kindness of heart that was so characteristic of him, the president told him to bring me with him on his next visit which had been set for a few days later.

A Red Letter Day
So it came about that one bright morning in January, 1864, we drove to the executive mansion and, after a short delay, were ushered into the presence of Mr. Lincoln, who received us alone.

As he rose from his chair to his full height I remember wondering whether Mr. Lincoln was ever going to finish getting up. He seemed to open out like a jack-knife at both ends. I could scarcely repress a smile, for only a few days before I had been reading of his remark to someone who had been ridiculing his long legs, "Oh, well, a man's legs ought to be long enough to reach from his body to the ground." I could not help thinking of this and, indeed, he did have the longest legs I have ever seen on a human being.

Tall, gaunt, awkward and ungainly he stood, looking down at me. But when my eyes sought the rugged, careworn face, the ruggedness and awkwardness were gone in an instant. I saw nothing but that sad, earnest expression, the deep-set kindly eyes, the firm mouth about which a smile hovered and heard the kindly voice as he said, "So you wanted to see Abraham Lincoln. Well, here he is. He then sat down, took me on his knee and talked with me for a little while about the progress of the war. We then took our leave—I carry more hallowed as the shortening years roll by.

Another Incident
The next time I saw him was a few evenings after this, at one of the few receptions, where I had been taken by my father and mother. And here again occurred one of those little incidents so typical of the man.

As we passed in line in front of the president, each one giving his name and being introduced by the military aide, my father stopped for a moment's conversation. As we were about to pass on Mr. Lincoln said, "Wait a moment, Mr. Lloyd, I haven't shaken hands with my little friend here," and leaning down he took my hand in both of his own and said, "I am glad to see you again."

Can you picture the scene? The crowded reception room, the brilliant lights, the gorgeous costumes, the soft strains of music and the ruler of a great nation of 50,000,000 people, surrounded by all the pomp and glitter befitting an important official function, pausing long enough to say a kindly word to a little child!

I saw him again at the White House on the occasion of the presentation to him of an elk-horn chair. Seth Kinman, a native of Pennsylvania, had gone in early life to the far western frontier, and for many years followed the avocation of a hunter and trapper. In 1864 he crossed the continent on foot, bringing with him a chair made wholly from the horns and hides of several elk which he had killed. This chair he desired to present to Mr. Lincoln and asked my father to make the presentation speech, which he did. At my earnest solicitation I was permitted to be present along with several other invited guests.

Kinman's Stories
The scene was an interesting one. Kinman was as tall as Lincoln but was much heavier and better proportioned. He was dressed, even to his cap, in clothing made from the skins of wild animals with their hair still on, and presented a very picturesque appearance. After the ceremony of presentation was concluded we remained for some time listening to Kinman's stories of frontier life in which the president evinced the keenest interest, every now and then being reminded of something that had occurred in his own early life on the Illinois border. Kinman then gave some renditions on a violin made from the frontal bone of a Rocky mountain burro, which he played with great skill.

I saw Mr. Lincoln several times after this at his own receptions and again during the delivery of his second inaugural from the east front of the Capitol building, where I stood within fifty feet of him. That morning was inclement, storming so violently that it was at first thought the address would have to be delivered in the senate chamber. But the people had gathered in immense numbers in spite of the storm and just before noon the rain ceased, the clouds broke away and, as the president took the oath of office, the blue sky appeared. A small white cloud, like a poised bird, hung over his head, and the sunlight suddenly breaking through it, fell upon him with a glory afterwards thought to be an emblem of the martyr's crown so soon to rest upon his head.

The Memorable Address
I saw Mr. Lincoln step forward to the desk on which the open Bible lay, his rugged face appearing above all those surrounding him—calm and sad, but so unlike any other in that vast assemblage that one might well have wondered how he happened to be there. I saw Chief Justice Chase administer the oath of office and heard every word pronounced by Mr. Lincoln's kindly voice as he delivered that address. There was no attempt at oratory, the gestures were ungraceful, but every syllable that he uttered sank deep into the hearts of his listeners. And when those immortal words fell from his lips, "With charity for all; with malice towards none; with firmness in the right; let us strive on to finish the work we are in, to bind up the nation's wounds, to care for him who shall have borne the battle and for his widow and his orphan; to do all that may achieve a just and lasting peace between ourselves and among all nations," the vast concourse of people gathered in front of him for a moment stood breathless. Then a mighty cheer broke forth from 10,000 throats, echoing and re-echoing up to the blue vault of heaven.

I saw him again on the evening of April 11, 1865, two days after the surrender of General Lee and three days before his own assassination, and heard him deliver the last speech he ever made from the window of the executive mansion. A week later I saw him again—and for the last time—in death—as he lay in state in the rotunda of the Capitol—calm, peaceful, the lines of the rugged face smoothed out, the kindly eyes closed forever—those eyes that had looked so gently into mine on more than one occasion. As I gazed upon the up-turned face, I remember thinking, perhaps for him it was better so. And time has vindicated that boyish judgment.

MRS. TORRENCE TO BE GUILD PLAY LEAD

The performance of "Dulcy" the next offering of the Little Theater Guild of Xenia in the near future will be open to the public, it was decided at a meeting of the executive committee at the home of Mrs. Steele Poague, recently.

Mrs. Findley M. Torrence has the lead role in "Dulcy" which was an outstanding success on Broadway a few seasons ago. Mrs. Torrence will not be the only newcomer among the Guild performers to take part in "Dulcy" and several players who have taken part in previous plays will be in the cast. Tentative plans were also made at the executive meeting for the annual meeting of the Guild to be held sometime in May. A committee was appointed by the president, Miss Lorena Paulin, to make arrangements for a special attraction to the meeting.
